

NDOG May 26, 2017 – Container Plant Handouts

Rosa Bianca Eggplant 80-85 days. A beautiful, round Italian heirloom with a rosy pink cast over a creamy white base. Meaty flesh has a good mild flavor and no bitterness. Great stuffed, sliced, or filled and rolled.

Casper Eggplant 75 days. Medium size, very attractive, smooth ivory-white fruit that have a very mild mushroom-like flavor. Prolific plant. Fruit ripens early. An excellent variety for specialty growers and gardeners.

Little Prince Eggplant 65 days (Hybrid) Perfect for containers or small gardens, compact Little Prince produces an amazing abundance of glossy, 3-4 oval fruits borne in shiny clusters. These curvaceous fruits have tender skins and succulent flesh that is never bitter or seedy.

Inca Jewels Tomato 75 days. “Roma” style container tomatoes are bred for extra-heavy yields on space-saving 3 ft. plants. Ideal to grow in large pots or in smaller garden spaces.

Litt'l Bits Tomato Bred in England. Plants form dense, mounding canopies about 20" wide and 12" tall and produce till frost, making them ideal for colorful, attractive hanging baskets and containers.

NDOG May 26, 2017 – Container Plant Handouts

Super Bush Tomato – 72 days. Hybrid tomatoes specially bred for abundant yields on space saving 2 1/2 to 3 foot plants. They are perfect for growing in large pots and patio containers. Super Bush bears juicy fruits with full-sized sweet tomato flavor, not bland or watery like so many other bush varieties.

Astia Zucchini - 48 days. Astia is a well-bred French bush zucchini variety, developed especially for container growing and planting in small space gardens. These non rambling, compact squash vines are highly ornamental with big silvery-green, deeply indented leaves. Early bearing and productive, Mascotte Bush Bean - A 2014 AAS Winner!

Great for small gardens and containers. Compact plants bear long, slender, medium green pods held above the foliage for easy picking. Disease-resistant, long-harvest.